

Figure 8 Feather-edge sand ripples represent final deposition at the distal end of a traction-load lamina. These layers often merge with the silt bands in varve couplets and may represent the mechanism by which all summer layers are deposited.